

The Moon, Venus and Jupiter gather in celestial meeting

Tomorrow, the Moon, Venus and Jupiter — the second, third and fourth brightest objects of the sky after the sun — will appear to be clustered together. View the sight from any location with a clear view of the west, with as few horizon obstructions as possible.

West, July 18

