

Which field of study has better job prospects?

New university graduates took home a higher median monthly pay of $3,600 last year, up from $3,500 in 2018, according to an annual survey. Here's a closer look at the numbers.

Course clusters	Full-time permanent employment rate		Median gross monthly salary
	2018	2019	2018	2019
Information and digital technologies	91.7%	92.7%	$4,100	$4,400
Engineering	84.1%	83.3%	$3,600	$3,750
Health sciences	83.8%	88.4%	$3,489	$3,500
Business	89.7%	88.8%	$3,450	$3,500
Built environment	87.3%	87.3%	$3,400	$3,500
Humanities and social sciences	71.2%	74.5%	$3,400	$3,500
Sciences	68.7%	71.5%	$3,390	$3,500
Arts, design and media	69.8%	62.4%	$3,000	$3,200
Overall	81.2%	81.7%	$3,500	$3,600

NOTE: Data from NTU, NUS, SMU and SUSS